

DWS4 Beta Evaluation Information

April 2023

Schedule

During April 2023, interested parties are invited to evaluate our new DWS4 cloud service. The objective is to ready DWS4 to become our main cloud service, incorporating fixes and updates that are essential to it surpassing DWS3 in all aspects of service.

What's Different In DWS4

Accounts Environments and Users/Roles

In DWS3, an account has a single user/login. This account has templates and API keys.

In DWS4, an account can have multiple users with differing roles:

- Admin – can do all things in the account
- Developer – can work with templates, API keys etc.
- Billing – can work with billing specific aspects of the account plan and payments

In DWS4, an account can have one or more environments. Environments group templates and access keys together. Rendering documents and managing templates is always done within an environment. The quota settings for environments can be managed by administrators.

Access Keys

Users may create and manage multiple access keys to an environment. This enables specific access pathways to be enabled and disabled as required.

Performance – Speed and Accuracy

DWS4 improves the speed and accuracy of the document generation process in most cases.

Fonts

A large number of modern and popular fonts have been added.

What's the Same as DWS3

The features in the console have been extended to work with Accounts and Environments. Where typically work in the console (such as uploading templates, rendering documents) would have been done in the context of a user/account, it now is in the context of the current environment.

The API is much the same for rendering documents and managing templates. The aspects of Docmosis Regions (US, EU and AU) are the same as DWS3.

DWS4 Evaluation Period

This is a beta evaluation period. It is not production ready since changes will be made that may require outages that would not occur in a production system.

Users should not use this service for purposes other than evaluating and providing feedback.

Feedback During Your Assessment

Feedback during the assessment is appreciated. In particular:

- Feedback on things that are not clear/obvious
- Feedback on bugs/issues
- Feedback on performance (accuracy and speed)

Please send your feedback to support@docmosis.com.
